

How to Make a Simple Cup of Tea

Tea is a common hot drink made by boiling water with tea powder, sugar, and milk. It is prepared in a pan and then strained into a cup before drinking. The process is simple, but each step is important because it affects the taste, color, and strength of the tea.

Ingredients Needed

- 1 cup of water
- 1 teaspoon of tea powder
- 1 to 2 teaspoons of sugar, depending on taste
- Half cup of milk
- A small pan, spoon, strainer, and cup

Step-by-Step Method

- 1 Take a clean pan and pour one cup of water into it.
- 2 Place the pan on the stove and heat the water until it starts boiling.
- 3 Add tea powder to the boiling water and stir it gently with a spoon.
- 4 Add sugar according to your taste and let the mixture boil for a short time.
- 5 Pour milk into the pan and mix it well with the tea water.
- 6 Let the tea boil again until it gets a good color and smell.
- 7 Turn off the stove carefully when the tea is ready.
- 8 Use a strainer to pour the tea into a cup so the tea powder stays out.
- 9 Drink the tea while it is warm.

Important Points

If you boil the tea for too little time, it may taste weak. If you boil it for too long, it may taste too strong or bitter. The amount of sugar and milk can be changed based on personal preference. Always be careful while using the stove and handling hot tea.

Conclusion

Making tea is a simple daily activity that teaches basic cooking steps such as boiling, mixing, measuring, heating, and straining. A good cup of tea depends on the right balance of water, tea powder, sugar, milk, and boiling time.
